King & Spalding’s Asbestos Practice Group serves clients in every phase of modern asbestos litigation, from trying cases that cannot be settled reasonably to cost-effective management of asbestos dockets, including pre-trial discovery, expert and dispositive motions, and negotiation of one-off or block settlements.

The Asbestos Practice Group serves as National Coordinating Counsel for a safety equipment manufacturer and has served as National Coordinating Counsel for General Motors, Ford, Honeywell and National Service Industries. We have developed a streamlined approach to managing dockets that makes heavy use of template pleadings and discovery demands and responses as well as experienced paralegals and staff attorneys. We have also served as legislative and appellate counsel on asbestos issues for various clients, including Georgia-Pacific Corporation.

360° Asbestos Docket Management
We partner with clients in every facet of asbestos docket management drawing together lawyers from throughout the firm who are best suited to handle each particular client situation.

- Case Management: overall strategy, identifying high risk cases, discovery needs, cost control, local counsel selection and supervision, motions, proven procedures used for other asbestos clients.
- Administrative Issues: managing the old inventory and matrix agreements, reviewing and negotiating new agreements where appropriate, creating databases, extranet.
- Documents: working with e-discovery and document management experts, developing protocols for efficient document collection and production.
- Experts: extensive knowledge of plaintiffs’ experts and commonly-stated theories and experience challenging the admissibility of their opinions, as well as developing and defending defense experts.
