

International Trade Overview

Helping Protect Client Interests Globally

OVERVIEW

Trade policy and enforcement has never seemed more unpredictable and chaotic. Corporations face new developments every day and have to quickly adjust their business and legal strategies only to face more change and uncertainty about the enforcement and market realities that will shape their success.

With more than 30 lawyers and trade professionals, including economists, foreign legal consultants and accountants in the United States, Europe and the Middle East leveraging their experience in government and private practice and helping clients navigate uncharted waters, King & Spalding's International Trade team is best positioned to help clients achieve their business and legal needs.

Our team uses their strong networks with the World Trade Organization (WTO), the EU, diplomatic missions, UN agencies, experts and nongovernmental organizations to help protect and advance client interests.
