

King & Spalding Life Sciences Data Privacy Law Group

King & Spalding Life Sciences Data Privacy Law Group

King & Spalding established the Data Privacy Law Group to provide a resource to companies on national and international laws and regulations that target life sciences manufacturers' operations and interactions with organizations and consumers. The Group proactively monitors regulatory and enforcement developments as the privacy landscape continues to be a focus of federal, state and international agencies. We stand ready to assist member companies in establishing compliant data governance practices. Our team leverages offices in Belgium, France, Germany, the UK and across the U.S. to provide market-specific counseling to companies. Member companies are invited to offer input regarding specific regions and codes that they would like the Group to monitor.

The Group is a subscription service that offers life sciences companies comprehensive guidance on evolving data privacy requirements in a practical and cost-effective manner. Our flat quarterly membership fee of $4,000 provides access to a suite of national and international global resources and services.
