

Technology and Emerging Companies

King & Spalding's Technology and Emerging Company practice represents entrepreneurial and emerging growth companies, both public and private, and the investors and investment banking firms that finance them. Our job is to function as members of a team with growing enterprises that want to succeed in business. We concentrate on helping companies get started, find financing and structure and grow their businesses. From business planning and raising capital, to protecting intellectual property assets, to negotiating mergers and partnering deals, our lawyers provide the expertise and experience needed to support the growth of emerging growth companies.
