

Houston

Houston leads the nation in energy and healthcare innovation. Since 1995, our Houston office has advised energy companies in complex litigation, appeals and transactions. We represent Fortune 50 to privately held companies that are active in the LNG, power, oil and gas, midstream, renewables and petrochemicals industries. In addition, our Healthcare team works extensively across the city, state and nation for clients on the most pressing legal issues that face the healthcare industry.

Our Latin American practice, with experience in more than 22 countries, is a marquee practice sought after by clients around the globe.

With over 85 attorneys, our work encompasses international and domestic arbitrations and litigation, energy litigation, environmental and tort litigation, product liability, construction procurement and disputes, capital markets, finance, investigations, healthcare regulations, intellectual property, joint ventures, mergers & acquisitions, private equity, project development and financial restructuring.

The Houston office supports a wide range of community causes from STEM education, to the Houston Food Bank, Texas Children's Hospital and the contemporary arts. In our pro bono work, we represent immigrants and the indigent, and work to prevent human trafficking and domestic violence. Since 2001, King & Spalding lawyers in Houston have donated more than 7,000 hours of legal services.
