

Antoinette Bedros

Associate
International Trade

Washington, D.C.: +1 202 626 2928
abedros@kslaw.com

Antoinette Bedros is an associate in King & Spalding's International Trade practice in Washington, D.C. Antoinette's practice covers various aspects of international trade law, including Section 301 investigations, international trade litigation, trade remedy proceedings, and related trade and regulatory policy matters.

Prior to joining King & Spalding, Antoinette was an Attorney Fellow in the Office of the United States Trade Representative. While at USTR, Antoinette worked on matters related to trade compliance, WTO dispute settlements, and Section 301 investigations.

Antoinette is a 2017 J.D./M.P.P. graduate from the UCLA School of Law and UCLA Luskin School of Public Affairs. She received her B.A., magna cum laude, in Political Science from Loyola Marymount University in May 2013.

Admitted only in California.

Credentials

EDUCATION

J.D., University of California-Los Angeles
M.P.P., University of California-Los Angeles

ADMISSIONS

California

ASSOCIATIONS

American Bar Association

Insights

CLIENT ALERT

October 23, 2019

USTR Announces Section 301 List 4A Exclusion Process

USTR Announces Section 301 List 3 Exclusion Process

May 14, 2019

USTR Announces Fourth Group of Chinese Products to Be Subject to Additional Tariffs as A Result of Section 301 Investigation; Schedule of Comments and Public Hearing Set

VIEW ALL ON KSLAW.COM

News

IN THE NEWS

September 18, 2019 • Source: Law360

In response to a petition filed by Steve Orava, Antoinette Bedros, Christopher Hyner, Daniel Schneiderman, Nathalie Smith, Neal Reynolds and Stephen Vaughn on behalf of the Coalition for Acetone Fair Trade