Douglass Cassel specializes in business and human rights, international human rights law, and international law. As scholar and practitioner, he publishes influential articles, teaches in leading law schools, counsels clients, conducts investigations and negotiations, and litigates before national and international courts. Among other activities, he advises attorneys on developments in the field of business and human rights, assists in human rights due diligence and risk avoidance, and helps resolve claims of adverse impacts.

Douglass Cassel is a widely recognized expert on business and human rights, international human rights law, and public international law. He has long taught in these fields, most recently at Notre Dame Law School, where he was Notre Dame Presidential Fellow. He has also taught at leading universities in Belgium, England, Hungary, Mexico and Spain. He has published more than one hundred scholarly articles and reviews.

Cassel has represented international law experts, and retired US diplomats, before the United States Supreme Court. He has assisted human rights victims before the Inter-American Commission and Court of Human Rights, the European Court of Human Rights, and the International Criminal Court.

His articles have been published in the Business and Human Rights Journal, Business Ethics Quarterly, and many other journals. On behalf of the American Bar Association's Human Rights Center and the Law Society of England and Wales, he was principal author of the White Paper: Options for a Treaty on Business and Human Rights (2015).

Cassel has both defended and sued major corporations. Before the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights, he defended Chevron from an attempt to enforce a fraudulent judgment entered against the company in Ecuador.

Cassel is experienced in investigations, negotiations and diplomacy. He was Legal Advisor to the United Nations Truth Commission for El Salvador. In 2015 Colombia's President called on him to help negotiate the justice provisions of the peace treaty with FARC guerrillas, for which Cassel was later awarded Colombia's highest honor given to foreign citizens.
