Ed Power is counsel in King & Spalding's Special Matters and Investigations practice.

Ed is a seasoned trial attorney, investigator, and advocate who represents companies and individuals in government and internal investigations, regulatory proceedings, criminal defense matters, and related civil litigation. He has significant experience in both government and private practice, and defends clients in investigations brought by the U.S. Department of Justice and Securities and Exchange Commission, and in particular against allegations involving the False Claims Act and criminal tax laws.

Prior to joining our firm, Ed was a federal prosecutor, first with the Criminal Enforcement Section of the U.S. Department of Justice's Tax Division and then as an Assistant U.S. Attorney with the United States Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia. In those roles, Ed led investigations and eleven jury trials that resulted in the convictions of more than 100 individuals and entities for felony offenses.

Before beginning his legal career, Ed served as an infantry officer in the United States Marine Corps and attained the rank of Captain.
