Glenn Johnson is counsel with the Special Matters and Investigations practice in King & Spalding's Atlanta office. Glenn regularly assists clients with the evaluation and selection of vendors, and with addressing shortfalls in E-Discovery technology infrastructure, processes and procedures.

At King & Spalding since 2003, Glenn has been involved in E-Discovery since the mid-1990s. He has considerable forensic experience with imaging, and has analyzed hundreds of drives, including but not limited to artifact/registry analysis, signature analysis, NIST/NSRL filtering, and carving unallocated space. He also has a high level of familiarity with storage systems, desktop/server operating systems, switches/routers, desktop/enterprise messaging systems, desktop/enterprise database systems and security systems (including but not limited to IDS/IPS/PKI/cryptosystems).

Glenn is an IT and litigation support expert with the following certifications: CISSP (Certified Information Systems Security Professional), EnCe (EnCase Certified Examiner), CEH (Certified Ethical Hacker), CCNA (Cisco Certified Network Associate), CCDA (Cisco Certified Design Associate), CCNP (Cisco Certified Networking Professional), CCDP (Cisco Certified Design Professional), CCSA (CheckPoint Certified Systems Administrator), MCSE (Microsoft Certified System Engineer), Certified Information Privacy Professional/United States (CIPP/US), Certified Information Privacy Professional/Information Technology (CIPP/IT), Certified Information Privacy Professional/Government (CIPP/G), and Certified Information Privacy Manager (CIPM).
