Kyle Gotchy works with hospitals, health systems, medical groups, and related businesses in connection with regulatory matters, operational issues, complex contracting, investigations, and enforcement proceedings. He works closely with in-house counsel, leadership, and other business, clinical, and compliance stakeholders on matters related to the state and federal laws governing providers and suppliers, the physician self-referral (Stark) and anti-kickback laws, and the development of risk- and value-based payment arrangements.

Kyle draws on the operational perspectives he gained while serving as Senior Counsel at Seattle Children's Hospital and strives to help his clients develop practical legal approaches in furtherance of their key business objectives. Prior to entering the legal profession, Kyle interned at the EPA on children's environmental health and assisted with analytical and basic sciences research in leading academic and biopharmaceutical laboratories.
