Rebecca Gittelson is an associate in King & Spalding's Atlanta office and is a member of the firm's Healthcare practice. Rebecca's practice focuses on the representation of healthcare clients in litigation, investigations, transactions, and regulatory matters. Rebecca also maintains an active pro bono practice, primarily focusing on immigration, pandemic response, and health equity. She is the current co-chair of the Atlanta Associates Committee Pro Bono & Community Service Sub-Committee.

Rebecca graduated with high honors and Order of the Coif from the University of North Carolina School of Law, where she was awarded the Chancellors Scholarship and served as a Comments Editor for the North Carolina Law Review. She also holds a Master's of Public Health in Healthcare Policy & Management from the University of North Carolina.

Prior to joining King and Spalding, Rebecca served as a law clerk for the Honorable Julia Smith Gibbons of the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

Before law school, Rebecca worked as an ORISE Fellow with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and as a healthcare systems researcher with a university-based research program.

Rebecca earned her undergraduate degree, summa cum laude, in International Studies and Global Health from Emory University, where she was awarded the Martin Luther King, Jr. Scholarship and was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa and Emory's 100 Senior Honorary.
