

Special Purpose Acquisition Companies (SPACs)

Leveraging our deep experience in capital markets, M&A, securities litigation, securities enforcement, tax and executive compensation and supporting practices, King & Spalding continues to be a leading advisor in the rapidly evolving SPAC space. Our cross-practice, fully integrated team can seamlessly speak to and deal with the functional aspects of SPAC transactions and the associated risks.

Clients value our ability to build the right team of advisors when dealing with SPACs. Whether guiding sponsors through initial formation and the IPO; leading SPACs or targets through negotiations, deal execution and public company readiness; representing placement agents and investors in connection with PIPE transactions; representing SPACs, targets and de-SPACed companies in securities and fiduciary litigation; representing professional or financial services firms in SPAC litigation; or advocating for and guiding clients through regulatory inquiry or enforcement, we provide the experience and coordination required to grant our clients the competitive edge and deliver successful results.
